THE LAW SCHOOL

HOLDS HIGH RANK

Sketch of Position It Has Attained in the Country

Because of what might be termed "professional ethics" among the leading law schools of the country, there are some things which one cannot learn about a school from the literature which it circulates in its effort to secure students. It therefore behooves the student body to "brag" somewhat about their Alma Mater.

This Law School is the only one in Washington which is a member of the Association of American Law Schools. This Association requires of its members certain standards, and this means that the George Washington University Law School is the only law school in the District which maintains these standards. To this Association belong Harvard, Yale, Michigan, Leland Stanford, Columbia, Wisconsin, Chicago, and other schools which stand for the highest ideals in legal education. This means further, that work done in the George Washington Law School will receive full credit in any other law school of the country, should the student desire, or be compelled, to attend another law school after completing part of the work here. It means, on the whole, that the work of this law school is considered to be on a level with that of the leading institutions of this country.

A further evidence of the regard the other law schools have for our work and for our Faculty is evidenced by the fact that Dean Vance is now entering upon his fourth consecutive term as Secretary and Treasurer of the Association of American Law Schools.

This law school is the only one in the District which is registered by the Department of Education of the State of New York, that is, this school complies with the requirements of the New York bar examiners. Therefore, graduates of this school are allowed to take the bar examination in New York without the preliminary examination required of candidates from non-registered schools.

Timers—Messrs. Hooten, of George Washington and Greif, of Western Maryland. Time of halves 20 minutes each.

There is no reason why G. W. U.'s band of heroes should not have disposed of the W. M. eleven by at least three touchdowns in the game which was played at American League Park Saturday, in which neither team scored in two sessions, each of twenty minutes duration.

G. W. U., after proving an ability to pick out or tear great holes in the visitors' line, advancing the ball almost the entire length of the field, would falter in the shadow of the goal posts. On three different occasions in the second half Quarterback Kelly worked his team within the limits of the last square, only to lose the ball on downs.

We have excellent material, a powerful team and every player knows the game, but without trick play we are hardly able to cope with teams that have been well drilled in the latest tactics. However, the work of several of our players helped to brighten the afternoon's offering for a goodly representation of followers. Hart and Capt. Alston at tackles, Right End Brookes, and Half Back Crafts were always in evidence, both on the offense and defense. The first two named were always good for a healthy gain when called upon, their numerous trips toward the goal with several opposing players along as extra weight, proved a source of amusement.

Brookes, the sturdy guardian of the right end, proved a sure tackler, and interfered materially with the progress of the opponents in

REGISTRATIONS LARGE

TOTAL EXCEEDS LAST YEAR

Report Made Saturday Night—President to Have Students' Hour

At the meeting of the University Council Saturday night the report of the Deans on the number of students enrolled was read. It will be a matter of pleasant surprise to the students of the University and to its friends to learn that to date there are 45 more students enrolled than at a corresponding period last year.

Practically every department shows an increase, and those that are behind almost come up to the record of the previous year.

The total number of students registered Saturday, October 9, was 1,058. On the 10th of October in 1908 the total number was 1,013.

This record is particularly gratifying to the University authorities, in view of the treatment received by the University from several of the local papers. It clearly demonstrates that not only is a University of the character of George Washington needed in this city, but that the institution itself is fulfilling that need in a manner satisfactory to the citizens of Washington.

The increases in the various departments over the number enrolled at this time last year follows:

Graduate Studies.....	4
Columbian College.....	12
Architecture.....	10
Pharmacy.....	31
Veterinary.....	27

It is interesting to note that despite rumor to the contrary, the Medical Department comes within 2 of the number enrolled in 1908.

President's Hour

The President will receive all students of the University Thursday, October 14, from 4 to 5, in his office. It is probable that this hour will be made permanent and be named the Student's Hour. It is the purpose of the President to meet all students enrolled in order that he may be placed in closer touch with the student body.

MORE PRACTICE NEEDED

TEAM LACKS CO-OPERATION

Remarkable Defensive Powers—Offense Needs Improvement

The game Saturday with Western Maryland proved conclusively that we have the material this year. Had George Washington shown any sort of the new style play there is little doubt but that the score of last year, 18-0, would have been equalled.

The defensive work of the team was a source of pride and despair. Pride, because of the noble stand made on the goal line, and despair because of the inability to handle Western Maryland's forward passes.

The game, however, was eminently satisfactory in that it developed the team's weakness at a time when it can be corrected. It is evident that Coach Dougherty has been going a trifle too slow in teaching his charges new plays.

From the showing made Saturday, it seems that the suggestion made of placing Kelly at end and Morse at quarter might be tried. The ends were woefully weak in handling the visitors' open play, and it cannot be said that the halves aided them materially. Kelly has played end and knows the position thoroughly, while Morse by his work gives promise of developing into a star of the first quarter.

The Schedule

Undoubtedly, this year's eleven has the biggest undertaking of any team that has ever represented George Washington on the gridiron. The schedule is ambitious to say the least. As to whether it will prove a wise move is something that only results can tell. The absence of the game with Naval Academy causes no little regret in view of the excellent showing the team made last year. Washington and Lee is also conspicuous by its absence, but the omission of this game causes little disappointment after the drubbing they received the past season. As a medium through which to estimate our strength as compared with that of our former Hilltop rivals it was interesting.

but only on account of that feature.

To offset the loss of the Navy game from the schedule, one of the biggest attractions in college football, the Carlisle Indians, are substituted and will clash with the Hatchetite squad at American League Park on the 6th of November. That the Indians will be the strongest team we will meet this season is apparent even before the prospects at the other institutions can be estimated.

Bucknell on Thanksgiving

From a playing standpoint the most important game on the schedule will be the Turkey Day contest with Bucknell. Ex-Coach Neilson pointed last year's Varsity for the Bucknell game largely. He watched the Bucknell team in action previous to their game here, and after the exhibition he witnessed he changed the defensive formations of the team entirely in order, as he thought, to meet Bucknell's peculiar style of offense more effectively. The result of that game was the well-remembered tie. Bucknell, unfortunately, didn't exhibit the style of play Neilson had anticipated, but on the contrary showed some of the best open field work ever seen on a Washington gridiron. The visitors scored on the locals before Neilson switched back to the old plan of defense. As soon as this was done the tide of the game swung and the locals managed to tie it up in the second half.

This year it is absolutely essential that Bucknell be beaten. Dougherty realizes this, and is confident of rounding the team into the necessary shape to win this game. His one greatest anxiety will be the fear of having one of the veterans around whom the team will be built, injured in one of the contests coming immediately before the Bucknell game.

G. W. U. GETS STAR

Gamble Enters G. W. U.

Another star track athlete has been added to our school. It was learned that Ralph Gamble, last year's captain of the cinder path squad at Princeton University, has entered the G. W. U. Law School and will probably represent this institution on the cinder path this season.

Gamble is the son of Senator Gamble of South Dakota, who makes his home in this city during the winter.

He is one of the best short distance runners ever developed at Princeton, and his work has caused comment in athletics circles all over the country.

In meets held in this city last year Gamble was a consistent point winner. In the Georgetown meet he was an easy winner in the dashes over the pick of short distance runners in this part of the country.

During the coming winter he should win many points for this institution, for it is doubtful if there is a man in this section of the country in the same class with the former Princeton athlete.

President at Harvard

President Needham of this University attended the inauguration of Abbott Lawrence Lowell as President of Harvard last week. It was the first time in forty years that such an event had been celebrated at Harvard, and everything possible was done to make the ceremonies impressive and inspiring.

The ceremony was held out of doors, with the principal actors on a temporary stage built against the ivy-covered walls of University Hall. The stage extended the entire length of the building, with a depth sufficient to seat nearly a thousand people, including a chorus of 200. In front, on white eagle-tipped staffs, were raised the seals of the eight next oldest American colleges, William and Mary, Yale, University of Pennsylvania, Princeton, Washington and Lee, Columbia, Brown and Dartmouth. Two taller staffs supported the Indian seal of state and the eagle emblem of the nation.

But the preliminary interest centered wholly in the great assembly in front of the old halls of Massachusetts, Stoughton and Hollworthy. It was here that the full brilliancy of the academic gowns was seen.

The foreign delegates were easily distinguishable by the color of their gowns, with James Bryce, the British ambassador, prominent in the scarlet and crimson of a doctor of Oxford University and a hat of black velvet.

The ceremony of induction having been completed, President Lowell delivered his inaugural address. He dealt largely on the development of the college of the old type.

Medical Class Organizes

Freshman Medical was the first class of the University to organize. As a result of the election the following assume office:

President—J. D. Stout.
Vice-President—L. S. Williams.
Secretary—J. N. Hennberger.
Treasurer—Mrs. C. S. Stallings.
Sergeant-at-Arms—Manhammed Selehaddin.
Class Editor—A. A. Riley.

Needham Meets

The Needham Debating Society of the Law School held its opening meeting Friday, October 8. A large number of students were present to hear the remarks of Dean Vance and Prof. J. B. Scott. Mr. J. T. Kennedy, one of the prominent members of the society and an intercollegiate debater, spoke of the progress of the Needham, and urged those present to come into the fold. Election of officers takes place some time in November, the officers of last term holding over until that time.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The first joint Chapel Service of the Y.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A., held last Wednesday, October 6, in West Hall, was a decided success and set a high standard for the following joint meetings to attain to. To an audience that completely filled the room, Dr. Clarence Barbour, a member of the Y.M.C.A. International Committee, gave a helpful and interesting talk, an example of what will be given by other capable and well-known speakers at subsequent gatherings of this nature.

Following are the leaders for the regular Wednesday Y.M.C.A. Chapel services of this month: Wednesday, October 13, David R. Covell; Wednesday, October 20, John P. Fleming; Wednesday, October 27, James W. Berry.

A statement of receipts and expenditures to date will soon be inserted in this column.

Bible classes will commence the first part of November.

Our Y.M.C.A. stationery has arrived and the House Committee will be glad to furnish it free to any one at our room on the fourth floor of the College Building. Several magazines will soon be placed on file. Come up and look them over.

Y.W.C.A. Meeting

On Friday, October 8, 1909, at the Women's Building, a meeting was called to order by Miss Summy. Miss Weller was elected President, Miss Summy, Vice-President; Miss Foster, Secretary, and Miss Clift, Treasurer. Every Wednesday at the Women's Building is the time and place of future meetings.

All girls are urged to attend, as it is desired to make a bigger thing of the Association this year than ever before.

Freshman Lunch

On Thursday, September 30, 1909, at the Women's Building, about fifty were present—fifteen new girls. Miss Summy was toastmistress. Miss Balloch responded to a toast for the Senior class, Miss Smallwood for the Juniors, Miss Geschieter for the Sophs, and Miss Gallach for the Freshmen. Miss Ellis and Miss Matthews also responded. An enjoyable evening was spent by all present.

University Library

The University Library is open from 9.30 a.m. to 6.30 p.m. The library is receiving constant additions to its shelves and now numbers more than 40,000.

A striking addition was made late last year in the acquisition of four volumes on Woman's Suffrage, published by the National Association.

Medical Class Elections

The third year Medical class held its annual election Tuesday evening with the following results:

President—C. G. Zimmerman.
Vice-President—Henry Yaeger.
Secretary—Clem Cox.
Treasurer—Felix Irmine.

Princeton has the only vivarium in the country. Don't know what a vivarium is? Well, well. It is a building, so the "Princetonian" says, in which it is possible to study the habits of certain amphibious animals about which there has been little accurate information on account of their habits of burying themselves in the mud along streams. We are really pained to know that there are so many clams at Princeton that a separate building is necessary for their accommodation.

his direction. Crafts starred in defensive work and cut off several sure long runs and possible touchdowns of the Marylanders.

On behalf of the visiting eleven, it is admitted that they are a plucky and decidedly aggressive bunch, thoroughly drilled in the rudiments of the game. On several occasions they worked the ball near the flag line, only to be stopped by the hefty G. W. U. linesmen, who failed to yield a foot.

Hart kicked off to Birdsall, who advanced the ball 5 yards. Stultz, right end, received a perfectly executed pass from Thomas, quarterback, and carried the ball 65 yards before being downed. Turner tried an onside kick, but the ball was recovered by a G. W. U. player. G. W. U. worked the ball to the visitors' 30-yard line where they were held for downs. Crafts punted to Thomas, who was downed in his tracks. W. M. tried a forward pass, but G. W. U. forwards were on the alert and the visitors failed to gain on the play. On the next play Graef recovered on an onside kick for a healthy gain through an unbroken field. Here G. W. U. showed the stamina that characterized the work last season, holding for downs with the ball less than a yard from the goal line. Play see-sawed up and down the field, with the ball in the visitors' territory the greater part of the half. The half ended with the ball in possession of G. W. U. in the middle of the field.

In the second half G. W. U. started off with a rush. "Speed" Kelley received the kick-off and advanced the ball 10 yards. Alston carried the pigskin through left tackle for a gain of 20 yards. With a series of line plunges, with the tackle as main ground gainers, the ball was planted on the 1-yard line. Here Crafts in an attempt to circle right end was thrown for a loss of 5 yards. On the third down Alston was given the ball and only failed for a touchdown by a few inches. Birdsall for W. M. kicked out of danger. Once more G. W. U. worked the ball within the shadow of the goal posts only to be held for downs. W. M. again kicked out of danger. G. W. U. resorted to line plunging for 20 yards, and a touchdown seemed a probability, but W. M. tightened up and the ball went over. In the last five minutes of play W. M. threatened to score after Sheridan fumbled a pass for a punt near the goal line. However, strong defensive work by the forwards saved the day, and the game ended with the ball in possession of the Marylanders in midfield.

Notes of the Game

The play of Hart and Captain Alston was of a stellar variety. Not only did they make the line impregnable, but were the main ground gainers on the offense.

Brooks went in at the beginning of the second half and proved that he is the best end George Washington has.

Morse, at quarter, had no opportunity to show his ability. He should be given a thorough trial.

Beginning with this issue The Hatchet will be published on Thursday of each week, reaching the subscribers by Friday morning. It was found necessary to make this change in order that the editors be given opportunity to turn in their material. Matter intended for publication in the current issue must reach this office not later than 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

This editorial will be our last appeal for subscriptions. We have stated the conditions under which we publish The Hatchet and the necessity of strong support from the student body. If the record to date of subscriptions at hand is the final word of the students we make the statement frankly and without hesitation that this will be the final year of The Hatchet.

The business men of Washington have rallied to the support of the paper in a manner worthy of mention. In our pages can be found the advertisements of the most public-spirited citizens of Washington, who realize the benefit of an institution of this sort and are willing to foster its existence.

That these remarks are serious can be gleaned from the record of the Medical School, which has turned in four subscriptions from the students, and this despite the encouragement of the Faculty.

It needs no mathematician to figure out that on such a basis no enterprise, be it literary or otherwise, can weather the storm of its expenditures with such returns.

Whether George Washington desires a college paper will be answered by the record of this year. The paper will not suspend publication this year. Whether or not the necessary support is forthcoming we shall see the publication to its end. Our appeal, therefore, is not for ourselves, but for the institution, for we can frankly state that with the record as it stands to date no individual or company will have the courage to undertake such a comparatively large financial proposition with the assurance of a large deficit beforehand.

We have no intention of assuming that The Hatchet does not require improvement. Not only are we willing to offer such improvements as the circumstances allow, but we beg of you to give us suggestions. Whatever feature you should choose to criticize we shall do our best to remedy.

Fraternity Installed

Another national fraternity was added to those already at George Washington last Saturday by the installation of a chapter of the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity. Those to whom the charter was granted were members of the local fraternity, Kappa Sigma Pi, which has been active here for the past three years. The ceremonies of installation consumed the entire day and were followed in the evening by a smoker. About 40 men were present.

A meeting of the Athletic Council was held Tuesday, October 12, too late for this issue of The Hatchet. A complete report will be given next week.

The Lesson for the Day

In an address at the beginning of the College year the President of a Western college observed that it was "a matter of congratulation to all the friends of the college that the year had opened with the largest Freshman class in its history. Then, without a pause, the good man turned to the lesson for the day, the Third Psalm, and began to read in a voice of thunder:

"Lord, how are they increased that trouble me!"

For the brains of just a few.

WHO'S WHY AND WHEN

The raw and unsophisticated Freshman arriving at his future Alma Mater, George Washington, may well be confused and dismayed in the whirl and turmoil of college, in which the following suggestions, gleaned from past experience, may be of benefit:

In strolling over the green grass and broad expansive acres of our glorious campus the aforementioned stranger may notice a well developed trail leading thro' the wilderness and much trod upon by those cultivating a taste for oratory, debating and such light pastimes. A pursuit of this trail will bring the embryo student to such places of interest as Harvey's, Chase's and mayhap even to the doors of the New Willard, famed alike in song and story. In idling away the hours thus, however, one is liable to lose the time necessary to observe and admire the splendid specimens of manly beauty and stalwart manhood only to be found in front of our main college building and, possibly, on the classic steps of ye Law School. Twined around the pillars of the former at odd moments the discerning one may even obtain a sight of our "Fritzie" (Scheff?) Crafts, one of the elect, nay, more than that, with the aid of a mighty field glass he may see our gentle, shrinking Kyrle (Curl) seeking rest and quiet 'neath the shade of Dean Vance's awe-inspiring presence. For the chosen few, however, is reserved that rarest sight of all, the king of kinks, our Percy Gates, than whom there is not greater.

Other local disturbances such as the mighty "Ajax" Newhouser or quiet (?) Keats, may tend to distract one's mind from the more important subjects necessary for a diploma, but in the course of a few years these disturbances will die away, having none but Jack Sterrett to agitate the heart of the unwary co-ed.

Perchance our good friend Sommers may so unbend (?) himself as to encourage you to try for the football team, in which event you are doomed Freshie, for from the eloquent persuasion of his silver-tongue no one has yet escaped.

It may be noted that in our directions for seeing who's what and why no mention has been made of medical or other ghastly

Practical Education Department

Q "How would you measure the Washington Monument with an aneroid barometer?" was the question recently asked on an examination. A student with more ingenuity than information replied: "Lower the barometer from the top of the Monument by a string, and then measure the string."

Q Now this answer was, in a measure, correct. The student gave a perfectly feasible method of measuring the Monument. And yet he failed in the examination. The professor wanted more scientific information.

Q You and I would never give such an answer. We would prepare ourselves before the examination. At least you would, wouldn't you? In this day of scientific knowledge and methods, you wouldn't think of measuring the Washington Monument with a string, on an examination.

Q But how about real life? What about the problems of business? Do you expect to measure them with a string?

Q Fifty per cent of the college graduates who enter commercial pursuits attempt to perform their duties by the string method. They haven't prepared themselves. They don't know the scientific principles of their business. And like the young man in the examination, they fail.

Q The time has gone by when any hit or miss style will do in business. Commercial activity today is just as much a science as any other. Its principles are well defined. And the man who would be successful must be acquainted with these principles.

Q The business man has no time to bother with an ignoramus. He demands that you know. You must be familiar with the proper way to make his business successful, or he doesn't want you. In an up-to-date office the untrained man is not even qualified to hold a position as office boy.

Q This matter of training is one that should be decided by every college man and woman. If you will ever have to earn your own bread and butter you will need the tools with which to earn it, and those tools cannot be acquired in a day. Unless you have an independent income, you will find need for a business education.

Q Now while you are in college, is the time to secure this education. Here in Washington you have an unexcelled opportunity to secure a thoroughly practical business training.

Q Draughton's Practical Business College, 1317 New York Avenue, offers a course specially designed for college and professional students. It gives, in the shortest practicable time, the essentials of a thorough business training. Pupils can begin at any time. Instruction is individual.

NEWS OF OTHER COLLEGES

Dartmouth won its first game of the season by defeating Massachusetts Agricultural College 22 to 0.

At Illinois there are fifteen companies in the military regiment, the largest in the history of the college.

The co-eds of the University of Kansas have become such enthusiastic rooters that a special section of the grandstand has been set apart for their use at all the big games. Respectfully referred to the Columbian women.

Trials at Cornell for the cast and chorus of the annual musical show have already begun. The show is scheduled for February.

No text-books in Economics are to be used this year at Dartmouth. Instead, the class has been asked to subscribe to the New York

Post, and to read the paper thoroughly in order to discuss economic questions in class.

The "Tar Heel" of the University of North Carolina states that the University starts out on its voyage under most happy circumstances. The Seniors in the first cabin number 81, while the Freshmen, down in the steerage we suppose, are 218 strong. The registration for all classes is nearly 800.

Football being under Faculty disapproval, basketball is the leading sport at Trinity.

The new V.P.I. football field is nearly finished and will be used for the first time for the Clemson game.

On the opening day of the session at the University of Illinois the "Daily Illini" published an 8-page supplement giving the vacation experiences of all the prominent people in College. That is journalistic enterprise.

LAW

We are glad to welcome into our midst Mr. W. E. Lamb, who is registered in the Law School. Mr. Lamb departed two years ago to finish his collegiate course at Dartmouth.

Prof. Earnest in addressing the Columbian Debating Society at its first meeting told the members how he and Prof. Clephane organized it twenty-two years ago. In his "earnest" way he recommended that all law students take an active interest in debating work.

Students in the class on Bills and Notes should remember the advice of Prof. Lorenzen—do not miss any link in this subject or you will find it difficult to complete the chain of successive steps necessary for a clear understanding.

Senior law students will undoubtedly be glad to learn of the success of J. A. Homer, B.L., '09, and Chas. Louis Allen, LL.B., '08. Mr. Homer has had the good fortune of being temporarily appointed assistant county attorney of Provo County, Utah, and that he has "made good" is evidenced by the fact that the local papers insist upon his permanent appointment to that position. Mr. Allen commenced practice shortly after his graduation in his native state of South Dakota. He, too, has been successful from the very beginning, judging from a recent communication in which he states that he has at present more work than he can attend to.

Dean Vance, in one of his characteristic speeches, addressed the Columbian Debating Society last Friday and the effectiveness of his remarks is indicated by the fact that out of the thirty-one students present twenty-nine registered as members for the ensuing year.

MEDICAL

Mr. A. C. Smith has been appointed chief librarian and Mr. J. I. Sloat, assistant librarian, of the Medical Department. The library, with its many new volumes, will soon be thrown open to the students.

A. A. Eisenberg has been appointed an assistant in the Histological laboratory.

Mr. Irmine has been appointed an assistant in the Pathological laboratory.

The Chi Zeta Chi Medical Fraternity has taken quarters at 1340 New York avenue.

The new professor of Pathology and Bacteriology, Major Frederick F. Russel, U. S. A., teaches the same branches to the officers at the Army Medical School that he does in our college. In this connection it is of interest to note that five of the sixty-one medical officers at the Army Medical School are graduates of this department. Last year the honor man of the Army Medical School was one of our graduates, and there is an excellent chance that one of our men will have the same distinction this year.

A decided departure from former customs was instituted when a notice was posted to the effect that all classes would be allowed, so far as possible, to attend amphitheater clinics in the University Hospital. Students are requested, however, to take seats from front to rear in order of class seniority.

It is expected that class presidents will meet the dean once in every two weeks, at which time all matters of interest to the various classes may be discussed. In this way the students come in closer contact with the administrative branch of the Medical Department.

COLLEGE

Mr. L. R. Manville, President of the Junior College Class, and Business Manager of the "Cherry Tree," has left for the University of Michigan, where he will complete his course. Mr. Manville's departure is greatly regretted by his many friends.

Mr. Lower, President of last year's Freshman Class and the one whose untiring efforts led the class of 1912 to supremacy, is unable to return this year.

Miss Isabel de Wandelaer is in Tampa, Fla., in an architect's office, of course, making friends.

Miss Katharine Alvord is visiting in Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and expects to return at Christmas time.

Miss Louise Bache is in a library in Pittsburg.

Miss Gladys Ord is going to Vermont for the winter instead of leading the strenuous life here at G.W.

Miss Effie Bakker entered the Junior year at Wellesley.

Miss Harden and Miss Greene have entered the matrimonial lists—the one to be married soon and the other having done the dread deed in the summer.

George Bean has decided to loaf this year, so his pleasant company will be missed from the college. Jack Sterrett is at Princeton.

ARCHITECTURE

The Architectural School started in this year with a registration of over 50 students, and as more are coming in every day we look for a most prosperous year. Nearly all of the old students are with us again, and we have about 20 Freshmen, exclusive of six "fair co-eds."

The Architectural Club will shortly hold its election of officers, and then for a "big time" in the basement. It is then that the Freshmen become acquainted with the upper classmen, and we hope to show them a few things.

Architecture will be very prominently represented in athletics this year, and we mean to show some of the other departments just how much we have around here. At present we have Porter, Hooten, Parker, Robinette and Will on the football squad, and next week will have two more men out. Simpson, Conboye, Horning, Robinson and Haller are training with the cross-country squad and are getting in first class condition.

We note with great pleasure that Miss Ballinger is with us, and from present indications she will receive lots of assistance in her work.

Our esteemed alumnus, "Billy" Knowles, paid us a visit the other night and gave us some advice regarding the Freshmen.

Greenberg is climbing the ladder of fame as a lecturer. We wish him much success if he will only confine his talks to subjects which he knows something about.

Keep your eye on Architecture.

Although graduates of this school have taken bar examinations in practically every State of the Union, we have yet to learn of a single one who has, within the last three years, failed to pass such an examination.

With such a record as this, is it remarkable that our regular professors are constantly being approached by other schools? Professor Monnet this last session resigned to accept the position of dean in the newly organized law school of the University of Oklahoma.

We are very proud of this record, but we have not yet reached the goal that we have set. Looking back to five years ago, this school was entirely a night law school with a very large enrollment, but with no recognized standing outside of the District. The uphill fight was begun by gradually starting day classes, and beginning with the session of 1908-1909 the work had been entirely put on a full-day basis. It is true the day classes have been small. But this adds to thoroughness and helps to spread the reputation of the school, so that we may look forward to, indeed we confidently expect, a gradual and rapid increase in the day work. We desire that this school shall not only be the leading law school of the District of Columbia, but the leading one in the United States.
